Dex Roadmap

The following updates will occur alongside the development of the PTE System in no particular order.

Tutor Tier Update

Since the last time I created this Pokedex, the Attacks have changed a lot and as such, the Tutor Lists for each Pokemon have a lot of inaccuracies. This update will review and rectify them.

Legendary + Mythical Addition

There are numerous ways of running Mythical Pokemon and Legendary Pokemon. This will be addressed in the Path of the Divine Module, in which Legends and Mythicals will be given various levels of importance and corresponding combat mechanics to be that appropriate threat level. This can cover Baby Legends that power up alongside trainers, standard legends that are just rare Pokemon and are slightly stronger, lower pantheon deific entities that are harder to deal with and greater deities that serve as end of campaign content that are massive threats.

Playtest Feedback

Most abilities were granted via flavor. Attack pools can be updated to make some abilities more viable to ability lists can change on wider feedback.

Pokedex Entries

It is my belief that Pokedex entries grant a lot of fluff to Pokemon that GMs may not know otherwise, such as Audino having a highly advanced sense of hearing. All Pokemon will be given a dex entry at some point to allow GMs to grant more life to Pokemon. May update capabilities as well. We'll have to cross reference World of Pokemon probably.

Dex Formatting & Polishing

I'm not 100% content with the design of the Pokedex and think it could be polished and reformatted to be more readable, concise and professional. For now it'll do but i focused more on laying out the 1000+ pages rather than making it look good. Made mistakes and didn't use Character Styles.

Fine Tuning

Some things like Levels at which Pokemon evolve may need some slight adjustments to account for campaign pacing. I also feel like making more niche Capabilities down the line. Maybe Sudowoodo will be hydrophobic and unable to swim.

3	Unique: Endure, Leaf Storm, Petal Dance, Powder Storm, Power Whip, Sludge Wave, Skull Bash, Sunny Day, Wild Growth Generic: Double-Edge, Hyper Beam, Giga Impact, Mega Kick

Tutor Attack list is a combination of a Pokemon's Egg Moves, TM List, and Tutor Moves in game. Each Attack is combined into a singular list and given a Tier Level. Tier 1 Can be learned at any Point. Tier 2 Requires them to be at least Level 20. Tier 3 Requires them to be at least Level 40.

The Dex entry contains a small paragraph that describes the Pokemon and basic info about them.

Dex Entry

As Bulbasaur evolves it gains strength in its hind legs, being able to support a much larger bulb. When night comes and its bulb is no longer absorbing energy, some of the energy is expended as a sweet aroma, however this only occurs when Ivysaur is sleeping. The expenditure of this energy is primarily used for healing Ivysaur, with the aroma being a byproduct similar to how humans sweat.

Dex Entry

Bulbasaur are born with large seeds that bloom upon birth upon their back. While they can choose to be a herbivore, most Bulbasaur gain nutrients from absorbing sunlight through these bulbs. Energy gained through their bulb can be stored as residual power in case Bulbasaur needs it, however most store energy in order to evolve sooner.

Dex Entry

Upon evolution, Venusaur has its bulb bloom into a large trunked flower. The color of this flower often depends on the terrain bulbasaur grew up in and how much sunlight it absorbed during its youth. Moderate sunlight areas usually result in Red Flowers while areas of harsh sunlight like deserts lead to Orange Flowers. If raised without sunlight in a cave, the Flower is Gray and smaller in stature.

Dex Entry

The leaf on Chikorita's head is used as an indicator of temperature and humidity. The leaf will often point towards directions of higher humidity, similar to a compass. Chikorita enjoy these types of areas so they're often found sunbathing near Grasslands or shores. Chikorita are extremely docile as a species, always straying away from battle unless their convictions force them to battle.

Dex Entry

On a Bayleef's neck are multiple curled up leaves, each one containing a tree shoot. Many pheromones are secreted from these leaves, leading to multiple effects on people around them. Sometimes spicy aroma can come out, having curative properties. Sometimes a bitter aroma comes out, leading to others becoming excited. Sometimes a foul aroma comes out, inducing rage in those who smell it.

Dex Entry

As the leaves on Bayleef turn into the large flower on a Meganium, its aroma coalesces into a pleasant smelling substance. As Meganium absorbs sunlight, the flower will increase in saturation. Using the absorbed power, Meganium can breath a gale of chemicals. These chemicals promote growth in plants, enough to even reverse the process of death in plantlife.

Dex Entry

Treecko have small hooks at the bottom of its feet that allow it to scale walls easier. Treecko are often never found with its own species as it prefers the companionship of other Pokémon in the forest. Treecko is commonly known as a defender of the forest, sticking with smaller Pokémon such as Shroomish and befriending it, protecting them until they're strong enough to evolve on their own.

Dex Entry

When a Treecko evolves into a Grovyle, it becomes confident in its strength to protect others. Instead of sticking with Pokemon, Grovyle tend to hide within the canopy of trees, watching Pokemon below and swooping down if they were to ever be in danger. Its preferred method of travel is gliding between tree branches, the leaves on its body to camouflage itself easier.

Dex Entry

The leaves on Sceptile's body, primarily its arms are literal blades and nearly as sharp as steel. Unlike Grovyle, Sceptile prefer to wander the ground level of forests, protecting the young Pokemon from outside intruders that may plan on catching them. Sceptile have a strong sense of pride, whenever they detect a threat in the forest they'll usually stalk them, ambushing when they least expect it.

Dex Entry

The shell on turtwig's back is actually made out of soil and clay. Whenever a Turtwig is dehydrated, its leaf will wilt and the shell on its back becomes dry and brittle. This leads Turtwigs to usually find a home somewhere near forest lakes and ponds for quick access to water. On a whim, Turtwig can use the water in its shell to harden and deflect physical attacks, becoming much sturdier for combat.

Dex Entry

Grotle's shell becomes much larger, encompassing a major portion of its back. In addition it loses its leaves and starts to grow bushes which become a wider surface area for photosynthesis. While not capable of growing berries just yet, many woodland Pokémon seek refuge from predators on the back of a sleeping Grotle, using its bushes for cover. Grotle is normally very friendly towards them.

Dex Entry

When a Torterra is fully mature, soil begins to encompass its entire shell, being able to sustain plantlife and grow massive trees. Even the Trees themselves normally sprout berries at some point. When dusk occurs, Torterras normally burrow halfway underground for camouflage and to absorb soil nutrients. Many small Pokemon such as pikipkek live their entire lives on the back of a Torterra.

Dex Entry

Snivy often excels at using its wits to maneuver around enemies within battle, transforming chlorophyll into energy that can make it swifter. Considering the hands and feet of a Snivy are often short and flimsy, it uses its snake like body to maneuver quicker in combat as well as small vines to interact with things further than 2m away from it. These vines can retract easily from its neck covering.

Dex Entry

It moves along the ground as if sliding, preferring to use its sturdier lower body instead of its limbs. They avoid attacks by sinking into the shadows of thick foliage. They retaliate with masterful whipping techniques. Whenever the leaves of Servine get dirty its harder to perform Photosynthesis, so they tend to be meticulous with cleaning themselves. If they're dirty or injured, they often get moody.

Dex Entry

The regal stare of a Serperior is enough to often stop an opponent in their steps. The energy from Photosynthesis is often used either to recover the vitality of their body or to boost their power internally. The more vibrant the skin of a Serperior, the stronger it tends to be or the more vain it is. The duller the Serperior is, the more battle worn it tends to be as it uses energy to recover rather than beautify.

Dex Entry

The quills on its head are usually soft. When it flexes them, the points become so hard and sharp that they can pierce rock. A thick shell of wood covers its head and back that even a direct hit from a Rhydon wouldn't faze it. Whenever a Chespin is scared they tend to curl in a ball and roll towards the nearest foliage such as a bush, attempting to blend in and avoid predators.

Dex Entry

Quilladin get sturdier as they evolve, becoming more confident enough to defend themselves from the attacks of predators. Most are still defensive but if an enemy approaches them they tend to flare their extremely sharp quills to force them to retreat. Quilladin are often very determined to get stronger, often rolling and slamming against each other or trees in order to strengthen their shells.

Dex Entry

While originally formed of wood, its shell becomes reinforced with bone and is nearly as strong as steel, especially the older they get. Chesnaught often wanders the forests they were born in, protecting smaller Pokémon from other predators that it can now withstand in its final evolution. Small Pokémon can often fit within the shell when it braces itself, offering protection it often wasn't given when young.

Rowlet are often found within large forests with massive trees, enjoying high enough altitudes where it has protection from most Pokémon in the forest. The branches it nests in tend to have a large exposure to sunlight and minimal foliage as to absorb as much sunlight as possible so they can be active at night. Rowlets tend to feel very relaxed when in cramped, dark spaces such as a backpack.

Dartrix tend to gain a massive ego to the point of narcissism, especially to the point of cleanliness. It will always keep its wings preened and wont respect trainer it deems as inferior to itself or its own standards of cleanliness. In combat it uses its feathers as if they were blade quills, launching them at enemies are rarely missing. If it ever misses or feels like it got dirty, they tend to get distracted easily.

Decidueye are famed for their ability to be cool and calm under pressure as expert snipers. It fires arrow quills from its wings with such precision, they can pierce a pebble at distances over a hundred yards. Like many Pokemon in the forest as they evolve, Decidueye are known as the Apex Hunter of a forest, watching from high and eliminating any Invasive Pokemon such as a loose Ekans or Seviper.

Dex Entry

The stick on the head of a Grookey seems to always be hollowed out. Whenever they hit the stick against the ground, a sound reverberates from it and causes plants and flowers within the area to be revitalized, promoting healing the more the stick is beat. Some Grookey have been observed to use a sort of morse code in jungles whenever it hits a tree with a stick, calling its friends to them.

Dex Entry

Wild Pokémon often flock around Thwackeys, enjoying the sounds they make with its now two sticks that serve as drum sticks and a club to beat up enemies with. Hierarchies and mating circles tend to form based on the skill level and rhythm of a Thwackey's performance and the quality of music they can make. Most however don't sound great and get lost in their own drumming

Dex Entry

As Rillaboom evolve they have the strength to uproot trees. They often have an instinct to uproot stumps and carry them around as an instrument, however instead of drum sticks they use their palms to slam into the drum. Regardless of losing the drum sticks, they have kept the rhythm of their prior evolutions and often cause jungles to have a heartbeat whenever they would perform, promoting plant growth.

Dex Entry

The fur on the body of Sprigatito functions similarly to plants and when absorbing sunlight, displays a magnificent sheen. However it has a tendency to dry out fast so it washes its face and bathes often, thus most Sprigatito are often found near water. When sunbathing, Sprigatito releases a lovely aroma, its smell usually deriving from the local flora near its birth place

Dex Entry

Coiled around the collar of a Floragato is a long vine that is attached to a flower bud. Floragato will often use this flower chain as a weapon in combat, slamming the flower against enemies which can often explode seeds on impact. If you come across a wild Floragato, you may discern its mood via its fur. If sharp and pointed or its hissing, it is preparing for battle or angry with you.

Dex Entry

Meowscarda's fur has reflective properties. Using the flowers in its possession it can create small illusions under the guise of its cape and albeit small, can fool the simple minded. The flowers it can create are full of pollen and explosive seeds. If stealthy enough, Meowscarda can plant these flower bombs and set them off before their foes know what hit them.

Dex Entry

The flame at the tip of its tail is an indication of Charmander's Life Force and Emotional state. If Charmander or its evolutions have a fiercely active tail, it is likely enraged, wary or excited. If the flame is weak, it is likely saddened or weak. While water can make the flame weaker, being submerged risks it extinguishing and puts Charmander's life in danger. It tends to bite and claw more than using fire.

Dex Entry

As Charmeleon evolve they tend to get hot headed and gain a rebellious streak. Even the most disciplined of Trainers often have a hard time getting Charmeleon to listen to them without a deep connection. Without being properly controlled, Charmeleon often act barbaric, using their claws and fangs to gnash at enemies and incinerating anything that slights, even the most minor of incidents.

Now gaining even more immense strength from evolution, the flames of a Charizard have the strength to melt mountainsides. Wild Charizard tend to use their new wings to fly around, searching for worthy opponents until they eventually find one strong enough to kill them. Strength is the only thing they respect and even if it respects a Trainer, it will only be subservient if their goals align.

Dex Entry

Cyndaquil tend to be naturally timid and scared of others. Even Pokemon as small as itself can scare it if they approach too suddenly, making them very delicate to approach for most researchers and new Trainers. Whenever a Cyndaquil feels threatened they tend to crouch or curl up and flare up the flames on its back to keep potential enemies away from themselves.

Dex Entry

Torchic often find a maternal figure within the first few days of life and will follow them without question for the rest of their life, rarely switching allegiances. If they cannot find one they often become reclusive, independant and stubborn for the remainder of their lives until it finds someone it respects. Torchic have a flame sac within their stomach which leads them to be very warm to hug.

Dex Entry

Combusken spend at least 10 hours per day running around Grasslands and their native habit, always training themselves to the point of obsession. It is recommended that Trainers with Combusken either run with them for bonding or let them run free for at least 5 hours per day to keep up their physical form. Their kicking mastery often leads to an impressive 10 kicks per second, almost like a blur.

Dex Entry

The amount of time spent training as a Combusken directly leads to the physical strength of a Blaziken as they evolve. Both the power of their flames, miles per hour and jump height are a direct result of this. The strongest Blaziken can often clear 30 story buildings, run up walls and knock out Tyrantars with a single kick empowered by their flames, similar to a rocket.

Dex Entry

Similar to charmanders, Chimchar's tail can produce fire using the gas that is made in its stomach, however the flame is only lit during combat or when Chimchar is excited. Chimchar that live in the forest tend to not have their tail lit as often as to prevent forest fires, whereas those that live in the mountains tend to be more reckless and keep it lit all the time.

Dex Entry

If you find a Monferno with a bright blue pattern on its face it is likely an alpha leader of a pack, whereas peons of a pack tend to have dull blue and facial markings made with nearby berries. When entering an area where Monferno are said to inhabit, making sure you pay attention to the ceilings or branches above you as they tend to sneak around and launch aerial attacks against strangers.

Dex Entry

Infernape tend to be extremely defiant towards outsiders or those they're not aligned with. Whenever you're interacting with an Infernape, pay attention to the crown of flames on their head, as the brightness and size indicate its current mood. Compared to most Fighting Pokemon, what Infernape lacks in strength they make up for in sneaky tactics and nimble movements.

Dex Entry

Tepig shoot fireballs from its nose, often come out as jet streams of flames. Whenever Tepig catches a cold it is unable to produce fire and tends to stay around its paternal figures for this duration. The favored diet of Tepig is often berries, but they refuse to eat them unless they're allowed to roast them first using its fire. If given berries, most Tepig require permission to roast them for some reason.

Dex Entry

Pignite have a tendency to roast any food they come in contact, unable to eat it otherwise. It doesn't even mind if it accidentally chars berries or dishes given to it and will happily eat it anyways. Whenever a Pignite is full, it has more energy that it uses in combat to either produce stronger flames or become more nimble, often using its body to slam and crash into enemies.

Dex Entry

The diet of a fennekin consists of twigs, branches and berries. Eating twigs often fills a Fennekin with plenty of energy to last the entire day, though most are unsure on if there's nutritional value provided by it. Equilibrium is kept in a Fannekin's body by exhaling and ventilating hot air through its fluffy ears. As a result, its ear fluff tends to be extremely warm and very comfortable to cuddle with.

Dex Entry

Whenever Braixen evolves, it finds the sturdiest branch within its forest and keeps it in its tail to use as a weapon. When pulling the twig from its tail, the friction from the heated fur ignites it, which it can manipulate to use in battle and amplify its psychic powers that are budding at this stage. Braixen often command other pokémon that are under its care using the enflamed twig.

The twig a Delphox grew up with is nearly irreplaceable for it and if broken it will become enraged and will continue to use it until completely destroyed. The tip of its twig is always ignited and grows stronger the more focused a Delphox is due to its psychic influence. On command, Delphox can create magical vortexes of fire with its twig as a conduit, similar to how mages have staffs

The fireballs caused by a litten are quite literally hairballs on fire. Litten spend many hours of the day grooming themselves, gathering fur in their stomach which are set alight and coughed up to cause attacks. Litten are often seen as distant Pokémon that prefer to live in solitude, exercise caution when attempting to gain the trust of one, as they will rarely warm up to you immediately.

Dex Entry

The bell-like object attached at the base of Torracat's neck is a flame sac, an organ that can produce flames that appear when evolving. Torracat's emotions cause a rise in the organ's temperature, and when the organ spits flames, it rings with the high, clear sound of a bell. Torracat attacks using the flames emitted from this bell. Torracat are often rebellious and its defiance makes it easier to charge power.

Dex Entry

As its fighting spirit increases, the flames that Incineroar produces within its body burst from its navel and waistline. In the heat of battle, Incineroar shows no concern for its opponents - and sometimes even launches attacks that strike other allies! As a result, many tend to dislike this Pokémon and keep it at a distance. Incineroar tend to never turn down a challenge from someone of equal or greater power.

Dex Entry

The yellow pads on its body are special thermosensitive appendages unique to Scorbunny. When they bounce in place they charge kinetic energy through these pads which cause a surge of energy that can be used to prepare it for combat. The friction from jumping and running around often empower their flames and allow them to kick enemies with deadly flames.

Dex Entry

Similar to Combusken, Raboot spend most of their days in the wild training, but in more sportsman and cooperative manners. They often play games and socialize with other nearby Pokémon in order to both show off and hone their coordination. One common game the play is to juggle berries using only their feet, practicing footwork and preparing for their future pyro ball signature attack.

Dex Entry

Cinderace never go into combat without a small object to use as a weapon. In the wild this often includes grabbing small rocks or pebbles or large berries which they will juggle with their feet. When they're read to attack they'll kick this object at a velocity that is recorded at 70 mph, as well as infusing it with fire for a deadly shot. They are often do this to show off, being fine at normal close combat.

Dex Entry

The small square shaped scale on Fuecoco's stomach is sensitive to heat, thus laying on a rock is enough to give it energy to morph into fire. Fuecoco's fire sac is smaller than normal Fire Pokemon so if it doesn't use energy right away, it will get released from the twin stems atop of its head in a small stream of steam. After it does this, Fuecoco often gets tired and lays down to gain more energy.

Dex Entry

As Fuecoco evolves, the stem shaped valve ontop of its head is formed into a nest and egg in the shape of a fireball. This Egg is made of pure energy and flames, though researchers are unsure if the Egg is alive or not. As Crocalor grows, its Flame sac merges with its vocal chords, leading its voice becoming empowered by the energy it gains, along with a tendency to spew flames often.

When evolving, the Egg on Crocalor's head hatches into a small bird of pure Flames that acts independantly from Skeledirge. The relationship between the bird and Skeledirge is unknown but it seems as though they have a Mutualist relationship. The bird gains energy from Skeledirge as it speaks and expends flames, while the Skeledirge gains companionship and a scout for potential prey.

The Shell of a Squirtle isn't only used for protection but enables it to swim faster due to its shape and grooves, helping to minimize resistance in water. When it feels like it's in danger it will retreat into its shell and peek out, occasionally spraying powerful jets of foam at the threat. Squirtles tend to be very social Pokemon, rarely ever being found alone or without having a group of wild Pokemon around it.

Dex Entry

Wartortle's tail is large and covered with a rich, thick fur that help it redirect itself when swimming. The tail becomes increasingly deeper in color as Wartortle ages. The scratches on its shell are evidence of their toughness and experience as a battler which transfers even when it evolves into Blastoise. When swimming its ears breach the water's surface, being used for balance and to stay attentive.

Dex Entry

As a Blastoise evolves they gain two cannons that can be retracted into their shells. Depending on how intelligent they are, the cannons can be used for multiple purposes. Most only use it for offense, blasting out water in a jet stream of intense force. Some Blastoise however are smart enough to use it to increase speed and maneuverability, as well as a defense system when withdrawn in their shell.

Dex Entry

The jaw of even a newborn Totodile is well-developed and strong enough to crush large objects and breaking bones. Totodile however is usually unaware of their own strength and bites things to play around. Trainers should be careful when training them as to avoid injuries and should teach them to control their emotions, as if they evolve without self control, they'll become monstrous.

Dex Entry

Once Croconaw has clamped its jaws on its prey, it will absolutely not let go. Because the tips of its fangs are forked back like barbed fishhooks, they become impossible to remove when they have sunk in. While strong, their teeth are often prone to being chipped or sticking in things they bite, however they can regrow their fangs within a month so they rarely mind outside initial pain.

Despite having a powerful lower body, it prefers to run on all fours when chasing its prey, starting slow to lower their guard before sprinting at terrifying speeds. In battle, it will kick the ground hard with its thick and powerful hind legs to charge at the foe at an incredible speed. When it bites with its massive and powerful jaws, it shakes its head and savagely tears up its victim.

Dex Entry

The fin on Mudkip's head acts as highly sensitive radar. Using this fin to sense movements of water and air, this Pokémon can determine what is taking place around it without using its eyes. Its large tail fin propels it through water with powerful acceleration. The orange section on its face are its gills, allowing it to breathe underwater when swimming through the marshlands.

Dex Entry

The surface of Marshtomp's body is enveloped by a thin, sticky film that enables it to live on land without dehydrating. This Pokémon plays in mud on beaches when the ocean tide is low. Marshtomp is much faster at traveling through mud than it is at swimming. This Pokémon's hindquarters exhibit obvious development, giving it the ability to walk on just its hind legs.

Dex Entry

Swampert predicts storms by sensing subtle differences in the sounds of waves and tidal winds with its fins. If a storm is approaching, it piles up boulders to protect itself and others with temporary shelter. The body of a swampert is immensely dense and rock-solid, giving it the ability to slam its arm down and break boulders with a single strike. The vision of Swampert can penetrate even murky water.

Piplup is most commonly found in colder regions near the water, making them very common to Kostrya and areas in the north. Unlike most Pokémon, Piplup and others in its species line hate being given gifts or food from others. Despite being clumsy, they have an immense pride that disallows them from accepting help from others, making it quite difficult for new Trainers to bond with them.

Dex Entry

Prinplup swims gracefully through the frigid sea and sings with a voice like the roaring tide. It has powerful, sturdy wings and dignity to match. When they evolve from a Piplup they tend to separate from any packs they were around, preferring the solitude of being alone as their ego tends to make them unsocialable. Unless it bonded with a Trainer as a Piplup, Prinplups are notably hard to train.

Dex Entry

Researchers say that Empoleon specifically evolved their wings to have a steel-like coating on them which helps them slice through solid ice like glaciers as they swim. Empoleon tend to be noble leaders within the seas of the Tundra, even beckoning the respect of many Gyarados, and if their pride were to ever be challenged, they would hold an eternal grudge.

Dex Entry

Oshawott fights using the scalchop on its stomach. In response to an attack, it retaliates immediately by slashing with its shell that's sharp as a razor. This shell isn't only used for combat, but also used to break open hard shelled fruits or berries on the coasts of beaches. Oshawott tends to have petty rivalries with beach Pokémon such as Krabby or Wingull, especially when competing for food.

Dex Entry

You can tell the origins of a Dewott based on the way it uses its scalchops. Wild and untrained Dewott tend to be more reckless when using the shell to slash at enemies, leaving many weak points and room for counter attacks. A disciplined or trained Dewott tends to be defensive in nature and uses its dual weapons to counter attack, taking advantage of weak spots in their opponent's stances.

Dex Entry

The scalchops of dewott eventually turn into shell-like armor that braces the limbs and helm of a Samurott. Instead of a scalchop, it gains a seamitar attached to its anterior legs, which it can wield and sheathe at will, surprising enemies. When swimming, the horn on the helm of Samurott tends to create a vortex of water as it speeds by like a bullet, leaving behind massive ripples and waves as it passes.

Dex Entry

It protects its skin by covering its body in delicate bubbles secreted from its chest and back. The bubbles reduce the damage it would otherwise take when attacked. Beneath its happy-go-lucky air, it keeps a watchful eye on its surroundings. While Froakies aren't naturally timid, they do tend to be passifists, avoiding conflict and fleeing when possible.

Dex Entry

When evolving into a Frogadier, they become much more versatile with their bubble creation, allowing them to obscure the vision of others and learning more offensive uses. As a Frogadier runs, they can launch bubbles behind them to both increase their speed and distract potential pursuers. Much like most amphibian Pokémon, the mucus lining their hands allow them to stick to walls with ease.

Dex Entry

Instead of bubbles, Greninja learns upon evolving to compact them into star shapes, similar to a shuriken. These stars of compressed water can be thrown at high enough speeds to split metal in two and slice through even the hardest of stones. The combat style of a Ninja, along with their weapon usage was said to be heavily inspired by Greninja and how they train.

Dex Entry

Popplio create special bouncy balloons to send at its opponents. When the balloons pop, the sheer force of their bursting is what deals damage. Bubbles are formed this way through bodily fluids expelled from their nose and with enough focus and training, they can create bubbles nearly twice its size. Popplio tend to be very social Pokemon, enjoying the attention from others.

Dex Entry

Brionne has a deep compassion for its friends or Trainer. Whenever they feel down it performs or enacts a cheery dance to try and help. Compared to when it was a Popplio, Brionne enjoys dancing and singing, often learning the tunes of other Pokemon until it can mimic it. It gets excited when it sees a dance it doesn't know. This hard worker practices diligently until it can learn that dance.

Dex Entry

As it dances, Primarina releases balloons of water into the area around itself, moving them using the sound waves from its voice. The sight of moonlight reflecting off its glittering balloons creates a magical scene. Its greatest enemies are arid environments and the overuse of its voice during back-to-back battles. Legends of the Sea foretell that if you follow a Primarina's Voice, you're lead to safety.

Dex Entry

When scared, this Pokémon cries as a defense mechanism. Its tears have a chemical composition similar to onions, and attackers won't be able to resist weeping by proxy. When it gets wet, its skin changes color, and this Pokémon becomes invisible as if it were camouflaged. Often times when scared it jumps into the nearest lake to obscure itself and hide its shame.

Dex Entry

Drizzile tend to be very non-confrontational Pokemon, preferring silence and being left alone. Whenever a Drizzile has a permanent home or den, it tends to lay traps outside in order to keep strangers out of its territory. The phrase "you're being a drizz" or anything similar comes from the fact that Drizzile are often highly intelligent but choose to not apply themselves, by being lazy or otherwise.

Research suggests Its nictitating membranes let it pick out foes' weak points so it can precisely blast them with water that shoots from its fingertips at Mach 3. Inteleon have many hidden capabilities, such as fingertips that can shoot water and a membrane on its back that it can use to glide through the air. Some say there are possibly many more abilities an Inteleon can do, it just refuses to disclose them.

Quaxly are only found within lakes that are free of pollution and are in pristine condition due to their tidy nature. The feathers on their body tends to reflect the nature of their environment, if they're clean and white, they live in pure water. If the feathers are gray or rough, they live in rougher water or the ocean. When absorbing clean water, its feathers secrete a gel that keep itself clean and deflect dirt from sticking.

Dex Entry

Quaxwell tend to leave the ponds they were born in when they evolve, wanting to train their legs by walking on land. They constantly play with other Pokémon and observe their movements, incorporating dance techniques based on the Pokémon they encounter. As an example, one who grows up around a pack of Houndoom may be more feral in their combat and dancing compared to in a forest lake.

Quaquaval tend to enjoy dancing and attention from other Pokemon more than battling itself. Rarely will you find one enraged in the wild unless its friends are in harms way and if needed, it will use its dancing prowess to aid itself in combat with evasive maneuvers and nimble strikes. Quaquaval tend to not respect people unless they show that they're cultured in some way and befitting of its help.

Dex Entry

Caterpie have small suction pads lined on its feet that allow it to effortlessly climb up walls and trees to hide for safety. It often crawls into foliage to rest where it can camouflage into leaves for protection, some researchers even suggest Caterpie used to be entirely yellow. Caterpie has pheromones in its red feeler that releases an odious gas that drives away enemies from its nest.

Dex Entry

The outside of Metapod's body can harden to the same durability as steel if it exerts enough energy, however the more often it does this the longer it will take to evolve. The shell of Metapod's cocoon is the only hard part of it, as if it's dented or broken its insides are much more vulnerable due to the state of metamorphosis. It usually takes a week for a Metapod to evolve if not involved in conflict.

Dex Entry

Butterfree has evolved overtime to gain a light coating of poisonous scales on their wings which shed when they fly. This allows them to deflect rain while flying and defend themselves against enemies that pursue them. The primary food source for a Butterfree is honey, however it usually detests conflict and will only go to areas not already claimed by Vespiquen or Ribombee.

Dex Entry

Weedle are often left alone by predators within the forest, being allowed to live unimpeded. This is primarily due to the toxicity of their stingers on their tail and horn and their small size, often stepped on by larger Pokémon. If someone is stung or has direct contact with one of their stingers it can lead to excruciating pain for a few days that even modern medicine can't totally alleviate.

Dex Entry

Kakuna are virtually unable to move until as their body prepares for evolution, unlike Metapod. As a Weedle evolves it will either climb or lean against a tree to hang from or lean against to provide it relative security over the next few days. If a Weedle is used to fighting however, as a Kakuna its carapace will be weaker but more flexible in its ability to move and fight back.

Dex Entry

Beedrill tend to be hyper territorial and vengeful, often being called the primeape of bug Pokemon. Whenever someone goes to a nest of a Beedrill and provokes it, they'll spit a small amount of pheromones at them which notifies the nest of any enemies. Anytime a marked enemy would come within a mile of a Beedrill nest, they'll be immediately swarmed without mercy.

Dex Entry

Researchers suggest that the spiky body of a Wurmple is a defense mechanism against avian predators in the forests they occupy, though the venom they eject from their stingers are weak in comparison to other bugs. The primary usage of their stingers is to stab the bark of some trees in order to leak sap to eat. Wurmple tend to evolve based on the taste of sap and honey they prefer.

Dex Entry

Beautifly has two primary sources of food. One of which is the sweet pollen of flowers that are natively found in Grasslands. The other is the blood of their prey. They obtain both sources of food via its rather sharp, narrow mouth. Though sometimes they prefer the blood of Pokemon with a Photosynthetic diet, as it provides much of the same nutrients. The patterns on its wings foretell of its aggression.

Dex Entry

Wurmple that enjoy bitter sap and honey or those sourced from decayed trees tend to evolve into Cascoon. Though Cascoon is non-confrontational, it is extremely spiteful. Whenever it gets attacked it will remember the face of those who inflict harm to it. Once it evolves as a dustox it will immediately fly towards its enemies for vengeance, sprinkling toxic dust over its den or children.

Dex Entry

Dustox are known to have highly sensitive bodies that are prone to changes in temperature. As such, they tend to be nocturnal and hide from sunlight. Dustox are often found towards very small sources of heat such as bonfires or street lamps which they use to warm themselves. The fine powder that sheds from the wings of a Dustox is said to be a strong physical weakening agent.

Dex Entry

Sewaddle are often very shy around strangers. Whenever they find themselves in an uncomfortable situation the leaves on their head condense into a mask or hood which cover its face. Sewaddle often personalize themselves by creating clothes for themselves out of leaves and their strong silk, biting off sections of the leaves to form into actual leaf clothing. They pride themselves on their craft.

Dex Entry

Swadloon tend to only be found in dark and damp places where it sulks near shrubbery with its leafy cloak surrounding itself. To the Swadloon that enjoy their craftsmanship, this period of their evolution tends to be their more "Avant Garde" and experimental period. Instead of making clothing for themselves they'll often experiment on other Pokémon, being very prideful and pretentious in the process.

Dex Entry

Leavanny tend to have heavy maternal instincts when it comes to caring for Pokemon within their natural habitat. Their favorite hobby is creating leaf clothing for small Pokemon, especially their own offsprings. They'll often use dye from Grafaiai's poison to color their clothing. Domesticated Leavanny can often be taught how to use their silk to create actual clothing for humans.

Dex Entry

Venipede have a similar reputation as weedle where most tend to avoid it due to its rash attitude. Offensively, Venipede tend to prey on small avians and bugs within the ground level of forests, biting and paralyzing them with its venom. Defensively, Venipede can curl into a ball that is as sturdy as a metapod carapace. Venipede are often known to pick fights with others on the slightest of whims.

Dex Entry

Whirlipedes tend to do nothing all day except eat and sit in one place all day, staring at passerbys menacingly. In a split second however, Whirlipedes can launch into a full charge, rapidly spinning towards their enemies at up to 40 mph. The spikes on their shell have a small resevoir of toxin that they can use to impale and poison their enemies. They tend to not have a lot of friends.

Dex Entry

It is said that Scolipede are extremely violent solely for the sake of violence as they have little to no concept of territory. They often pursue prey at fast speeds for up to 8 hours. Once they catch up to their prey they'll jab them with their toxic claws and ragdoll them until they stop moving. They enjoy letting their food soak in poison for around a week before they thoroughly enjoy them.

Dex Entry

The primary diet of Scatterbug tend to be poisonous leaves and polluted trash, as they don't have to compete for it. A byproduct of converting toxic substances to nutrients involves creating a small surplus of black powder. This powder is secreted through their skin which regulates temperature, allowing them to live in many climates. On contact it also tends to paralyze their predators.

Dex Entry

When evolving, Spewpa develops a thick coat of fur that serves as its cocoon until evolution. Whenever predators attempt to attack it, it will quickly expand the bristles of its fur, make it sharp and expunging stored black powder and paralyzes them long enough where it can run away. The color of the powder tends to change based on the environment Spewpa evolves in, which leads to its future pattern.

Vivillon are well loved by collectors due to the variety in patterns they have on their wings. The pattern of their wings are a direct result of the climate and topography of their habitat and it is said that few are alike. It is often a pasttime in the profession of Pokemon breeding to breed your own vivillon pattern, often treated as a rite of passage and mark of veterancy.

Grubbin relies on its sturdy jaw as a weapon in battle and as a tool for burrowing through the earth. Grubbin loves electricity, which is why it can be found near power plants and substations. By wrapping tree branches in the sticky threads that it spews from its mouth, Grubbin can swing around a lot faster than it could walk normally. Grubbin can often be found biting small Electric Pokémon like Pichu.

Dex Entry

Charjabug stays perfectly still in preparation for Evolution, and often spends time with its body half-buried in the earth. A common practice in engineering is what is known as the perpetual Charjabug, where factories mass breed grubbin and keep them as a Charjabug. They constantly feed them food and prevent them from evolving so they can create and store electricity for machines.

Dex Entry

The first Vikavolt to evolve in a colony of dormant Charjabug often steal one of them and fly away. This Charjabug is held as a second battery to absorb any electricity when Vikavolt gets tired. When a Charjabug is drained of energy this way, they're often discarded, not having enough energy for their own evolution anymore. The pinsirs of a Vikavolt are famed for channeling lightning like a railgun.

Dex Entry

Kingambits are extremely rare to find in the wild and are often only the level of a Guardian in strength. There will often be one Kingambit that controls a region and serves as a king to every Pawniard within miles, often forming its own dominion to rule. The intelligence and leadership of Kingambit have often lead to small encampments or towns formed by Bisharp and their servants.

Dex Entry

Dratini are often born larger than Dratini, however over their childhood they repeatedly shed their skin and get longer in the process of becoming a Dragonair. If the Dratini is in a rapid body of water it often sheds less to stay protected, resulting in a smaller evolution. Boots and other products made from the tanned cast-off skin are a highly expensive luxury item.

Dex Entry

Dragonair tend to have a mystic aura around them that calms down the hostility of Pokémon that are around them, which lead them to have a reputation of creating peaceful areas. The energy they generate overtime is often stored in the crystalline orbs on its body which it either expends when evolving or it uses to cause shifts in the weather, either creating draconic energy, rain or sun.

Dragonite are often seen as the kindest of all Dragon Pokemon, living only on mountains that are nearby the springs it grew up in or near large oceans. Dragonite are often seen traveling over large bodies of water, assisting sailors that are in conflict at sea or rescuing trainers that are shipwrecked. Seeing an Angry Dragonite tends to be rare than meeting a Primal Form Legendary Pokemon.

Dex Entry

The dorsal fin on Frigibax absorbs heat from around it and converts it to cold energy within its stomach. This allows Frigibax to live in nearly any climate, however it still prefers Tundras as it takes less energy to build nests compared to other Terrains. There are some cases of Frigibaxs living in volcanic tunnels, converting the heat in order to create mini refrigerated cavern nests.

Dex Entry

Arctibax are often terrifyingly aggressive predators wherever they may live. As they evolve, they gain masks of frozen ice, formed from the ability to freeze air around them simply with their breath. Their dorsal fins also change and gain the ability to use stored energy to form sheets of sharp ice around the fin, using it to slash through enemies as if it were sharp as a blade.

Dex Entry

Baxcalibur are the only known Ice Pokémon that can live comfortably in Volcanos, using the super heated air to empower itself even stronger than it would be in Tundras. When coming across the frozen den of a Baxcalibur, beware as it can blast cryogenic air towards its enemies with the strength to instantly inflict frostbite. Its breath is strong enough to even freeze liquid lava in the matter of a minute.

Dex Entry

Pawmi's Electric Sacs on its cheeks are barely functional when its first born until suitably trained. Electricity can only be produced if it furiously rubs its cheeks with enough friction but even then it barely has enough power to match a Pichu. When it creates static through rubbing its cheeks, it will often stand on its hind legs and throw thunder strikes at its enemies, though it often misses.

Dex Entry

As Pawmi evolves, its Electric Sac becomes more developed and it gains the ability to use its paw pads as a conduit for electricity generated by them. It often gains a lot of confidence and defends herds of Pokémon it travels with by leaping at enemies and hitting them with a flurry of hits. Once Pawmo gets heated it will often expend all its electricity in a flurry of strikes, exhausting it in the process.

Dex Entry

Pawmot are often gentle and kind creatures and take a while to understand combatative intent, however once they get fired up, they become lightning fast. The fur on Pawmot's body can store an immense amount of electricity that surpasses any battery that has been able to be created industrially to our knowledge and is often kept as pets in power plants to assist in energy generation.

Dex Entry

Tinkatink and its evolutions are incredibly versatile at using scrap material to make weapons to defend itself. Though in this stage it can only wield smaller items such as clubs or mallets which it uses to bully other Pokémon into performing its bidding. Researchers suggest this behavior is simply a cry for attention due to its poor ability to socialize, however most think it's just rude.

Dex Entry

If Tinkatuff has a social group that performs its bidding, it will order them to gather scrap each day, which is used to craft a larger or stronger weapon for itself. Though it often uses this weapon to defend its servants rather than simply bullying others. Smaller Pokémon often become servants of a Tinkatuff due to lacking power themselves, appreciating the defender.

Dex Entry

Wild Tinkaton often take at least 1 Year to gather enough scrap to form the massive weapons they're known for, though this process is sped up if they live in a city or quarry. Most Tinkaton tend to have daring and mischievous dispositions and use their weapon to torment other Pokemon. The Pokemon it targets, however, are nearly always stronger than itself, or they tend to be avian Pokemon species.

Dex Entry

It is said that once you die and reach Final Judgment, you may choose to wander Phemenon instead of going to the Aether if you were a good person. Those that are often filled with regret choose this to continue living a new life or to watch over their loved ones. Often times Gastly will possess inanimate objects in order to grant them sentience and give it a new body, creating new Pokemon somehow.

Dex Entry

A very popular theory in the paranormal field is that Duskull are the physical manifestations of souls. Souls that have no purpose but are disconnected from their bodies somehow will take on the form of a duskull and wander endlessly pursuing meaning. The light behind the mask of a Duskull is said to be a soul, its color changing depending on the mood of Duskull, similar to Aura.

Dex Entry

Rumors of Litwick began when an envious Gastly possessed a wick candle within a castle. After possessing the candle, its flame glows bright purple, the brighter it is the happier the Litwick is. However over time it will start to melt and die out, causing the realization it possessed an ephemeral form. To combat this, it absorbs a small amount of life force from people nearby, restoring its vitality.

Dex Entry

Gimmighoul are small creatures that enjoy stealing riches from areas around them and bringing them back to their hideouts. They serve no other purpose than to gain the most wealth possible and avoid conflict to while doing so, by any means. Special breeds of Houndour have been bred in Gabyrgg due to the notoriety of thieves using Gimmighoul to steal from vendors without being noticed.

Dex Entry

Most of the time, Gimmighoul will store treasures it steals in small coves or bushes, however sometimes they will find a chest or storage container. It will then claim that chest and enter its chest form. Once it gathers enough wealth, Gimmighoul will be content and evolve into this new form and will not leave to gather more. Anyone who touches its chest will have energy drained from them.

Dex Entry

Once a Gimmighoul gathers enough wealth, its spirit will merge with the treasure it obtains and form a body of pure gold. Once in this new form, Gholdengo has lost all the desire for material wealth and greed, reaching a stage of enlightenment in the process. The new purpose of life for a Gholdengo is helping others achieve their dreams, which often involves helping other Pokémon protect their riches.

Dex Entry

Smoliv often protect itself from predators by emitting oil from the fruit on its head. This oil is extremely bitter and its aroma alone is enough to make someone flinch. Many avian Pokémon tend to avoid Smoliv as a result of this so they're often kept close to other Grass Pokémon in colonies to protect them by proxy. Fortunately Grass Pokémon don't mind the aroma as much.

Dex Entry

When Smoliv evolves, the oil created from its fruit becomes pleasant and contains a scent of freshness compared to its previous bitterness. As such, during this stage, Dolliv are very fragile and must be protected by its friends to not be preyed upon by those allured by it. The more a Dolliv sunbathes, the more pleasant its fruit will become and it often results in a quicker evolution.

Dex Entry

Most gardens have at least one Arboliva who is revered by most Pokemon native to the area. Using the rich soil to derive nutrients from, Arboliva grows fruit that is capable of healing even the deadliest of wounds, and is happy to do so. To those that threaten it, Arboliva tend to launch globs of aromatic oil at them with enough force to smash a boulder.

Dex Entry

Due to the poor eyesight of Swinub they often rely on other senses to interact with the world. Their sense of smell is very acute, being about to find berries and mushrooms even in the arctic north of Kostrya. They also are very sensitive to seismic action. Whenever villagers see the Swinub acting crazy or nervous, it is an indicator of either an incoming avalanche or swarm of Pokemon approaching.

Dex Entry

Happiny are well known for their very early development of maternal instincts. Their species line is cherished due to their compassionate and selfless nature. Within the first few weeks of life will often search riversides and find the smoothest rock available and store it in its pouch. This behavior often only develops in Happiny without a social group, as it becomes an outlet for emotions.

Dex Entry

Upon evolution, Chansey gains the ability to create highly nutritious eggs at least once per week. It often derives joy from sharing its eggs to its friends as a source of food. While other Pokémon are very protective of their eggs, Chansey doesn't seem to mind for some odd reason. Its eggs are often a high source of vitamins and nutrients, leading it to be used in hospitals for supplements to the sick.

Dex Entry

The older a Chansey and Blissey get, the more nutritious their eggs become, even being high enough in dopamine to make the consumer happy as a result. However after a certain point Blissey creates fewer and fewer eggs, leading to its loss in value. It then focuses on caring for the eggs of other Pokémon, storing them in its heated pouch and caring for it as if it was its own child.

Nacli were born in the deepest layer of the crust of the world with their bodies made of pure rock salt. As they grow or move, their bodies scrape against objects and leave salt behind, thus making it a valuable ally for early settlers that wished to preserve food. If a Nacli becomes injured their body will crack, leaving it defenseless and crumbling.

Dex Entry

The salt created by Naclstack is incredibly strong and used for dry curing its enemies. Having any salt sprayed on its victims will absorb the water from their body through their skin and can lead to rapid dehydration. Not only that but when charging an attack, Naclstack will often spray hardened salt pellets at its enemies that are fast enough to pierce through iron.

Garganacl has the ability to control the aspects of the salt it creates depending on what it consumes. Some salt it creates has healing factors that when sprinkled over wounds, immediately cauterizes and heals. Some salt are as hard as bullets and can induce burning on its enemies. Some salt enhances the taste of food even more than normal salt. Garganacl however prefers to live in caves away from humans.

Dex Entry

Within the first few days of birth, Aron instinctively searches for iron to consume and forge into the steel that coats its body, each time they evolve they shed off this armor and use inner reserves to become bigger. Aron were essential with early nations as they served as a consistent source of metal and could often scout out deposits of iron within deep caverns in order to feast on it.

Dex Entry

In order to keep the steel armor on their body tempered, Lairon tend to settle near mountain springs, those that do tend to become stronger. While Aron often form small dens together, those that evolve become intensely territorial, needing to monopolize iron sources in order to maintain its armor and gain enough energy to eventually evolve. They will very violently defend their territory.

Dex Entry

The territorial nature of an Aggron tends to dominate sections of the mountains they're home to, even becoming problems for many miners that need to be cleared before they can work. Instead of using iron to replenish its armor however, it only eats for pleasure, keeping any gouges they've gained as trophies. The horns of Aggron were often worn by Kostryans as battle trophies of their own.

Sometimes the spirits of warriors will cease to leave the Mortal Plane, clinging to the fight that was their last moment. They will immediately possess a weapon and a Honedge will be created, stuck in this form with only the memories of conflict remaining as their families become a distant shroud. It will intertwine its blue sash around Trainer's arms to assist it in battle, sharing its memories as well.

Dex Entry

With the usage of a Protector, Scyther is able to harden its body, taking stones around it and forming it into a rocky exoskeleton. Instead of scythes it instead gains a stone axe on each appendage which it uses as a makeshift shield and weapon. Despite its dull appearance however these axes are incredibly sharp, being able to fell trees, however they dull as Kleavor ages.

Dex Entry

Using its knife-like arms it can scrape against each other to create melodious tunes. Conversely it can also scrape against each other to create shrill sounding noise that is painful to listen to. By creating music it can either lure Pokemon near it with harmonious tunes or drive them away with sharp screeches. The older a Kricketune, the more dull this tune becomes over time.

Dex Entry

Over time, Tarountula have developed silk threads that are elastic and tough enough to deflect the scythes of a Scyther, who used to be a prime predator of this Pokémon. At night time, Tarountula often retreats into its ball of silk and hangs from a tree. Even the deadliest of attacks are minimized while in this cocoon state. The silk created by Tarountula is often used for military grade fabric.

Dex Entry

The territory of a Spidops is often deadlier than any other arachnid Pokémon such as Ariados. Within the claimed territory of a Spidops, they will set many traps in order to deter outsiders which include webs of thread. This thread maintains the sturdiness of its former stage, however it also gains a residue that coats it and makes the thread extremely sticky and traps smaller Pokémon in their tracks.

Nymbles gain their name from how nimble they are in combat, often unable to be hit unless their enemies are extremely precise or focused. It will often bounce around in combat, using the force from jumping to hurt enemies by ramming into them. Using the second set of legs on its back, they can detract and function as a spring, launching Nymble up to 30 Feet in the air.

Dex Entry

When evolving, Lokix's second set of legs gain spiked appendages which can be controled like a chainsaw. It doesn't use these legs for jumping since it is stronger now, however it uses them primarily for combat and performing deadlier kicks. These legs can still be used as normal however and is most useful to run up walls as the spikes snag onto the rough surface and allow it to surf on walls.

Dex Entry

Rellor will endlessly spend days within the desert rolling up sand and mud in order to create a small mudball. This mudball is slowly imbued with the energy of Rellor as time progresses, becoming a mixture of dirt, sand, mud and psionic aura. Rellor will continue to slowly grow the mudball bigger until it either dies or evolves once enough energy has been fed to the mudball.

Once the mudball gains enough energy it will transform into a pure ball of psychic energy and Rellor will become paralyzed and unable to move. Its scarab form will become stiff and lifeless while the psychic ball floats around and performs most of the attacking. Researchers are unable to ascertain as to whether Rabsca is within the ball, is being controlled by the ball or is the ball itself.

Dex Entry

Sneasel were said to have adapted to gain claws in order to scale the icy mountains of Kostrya in order to reach Pokemon nests on the cliffsides. Research shows that Sneasel are perfectly willing to have a herbivore diet, but there is an instinctual desire to torment Pokemon and steal the eggs of others to feast on, viciously hunting potential rivals in the process if they are confronted.

Dex Entry

Instead of hunting solo, Weavile often form packs and communicate with each other, sharing resources they've gained equally among each other. Interestingly enough communication methods include claw marks in boulders and mountainsides, serving as indicators of a meeting spot or claimed territory. Instead of eggs, Weavile Packs tend to big game hunt bigger threats in the Tundra such as Mamoswine.

Maschiff are often the most aggressive and loveable canine Pokémon that is known to date. When Maschiff develops trust with its social group, it will defend them to the death and distrust anyone outside of its group. Unless provoked, wild Maschiff are often all bark and no bite and will only defend its friends. Maschiff will only get serious when it encounters a threat stronger than it or its allies are threatened.

Dex Entry

Tadbulb often gather energy from the plasma in the air around them, using their energy reserves to float around away from the predators on the ground. During thunderstorms they often float near the cloudline, gathering energy from lightning around them. Whenever Tadbulb senses danger it will blink the light in its head to alert its allies which is often useful for watchtowers and towns.

Dex Entry

Be wary of the false eyes on the side of a Bellibolt's head, as they are actually organs for discharging electricity. Whenever the blubbery belly of Bellibolt is hit with an attack, the kinetic energy is absorbed and converted into electricity which it can use to strike back. Often times when a Bellibolt is about to fight, it will slap its stomach rapidly and as it drums, energy will start to accumulate in its gut.

Dex Entry

By taking in someone's scent, Slurpuff can sense their Mental and Physical state of being. While this is a very useful ability there is little way for Slurpuff to effectively communicate its findings. Slurpuff's hair is very airy and wispy, oftening needing to be trimmed frequently or else it can't see. Supposedly its hair tastes extremely sweet like candy, and while not nutritious is a common food in festivals.

Dex Entry

An ancient fable in Aethia describes the origins of Milcery. A famous bakery in Esgate created delicious pasteries but had a no Pokemon policy. One gastly decided to challenge this by possessing a vat of cream, forming a new body where it could eat all it wanted without suspicion. How Milcery bred beyond that is unknown. Milcery evolves based on the food it eats and the type of flavors it enjoys.

Dex Entry

Alcremie are almost never the same visually, their creamy bodies differing depending on their diet when they were a Milcery. Depending on how happy Alcremie is or how it was treated when it was young, the cream in its body will become sweeter. Though conversely, if an Alcremie is treated poorly, the cream will become much more toxic and inedible, allowing it to be effective in battle.

Dex Entry

Fidough tend to be extremely smooth and moist to the touch, almost doughy in consistency rather than skin. Fidough possess a unique ability to induce fermentation with their breath, causing them to become valuable companions to bakers and chefs in pastry shops. When fermentation is induced this way, it is said that the pastries become much more moist and delectable.

Dex Entry

The breath that Fidough had is now expanded to its aura and aroma as well, so anything that grows near Dachsbun is assisted by its presence. The doughy form of Fidough instead hardens when evolving, and further solidifying when exposed to heat, leaving behind a toasty aroma if exposed to flames. Dachsbun are often kept in nursery as they have a fondness for cuddling with eggs for companionship.

Dex Entry

Mankey tend to have a very prideful personality, so sometimes when they would lose in battle, a mental switch is triggered and it gains control of its anger. Some may even say that through fainting, Mankey reaches an enlightenment to control its rage as it evolves into an Annihilape instead of a Primeape. Annihilape can remain calm when enraged, but channel its anger into deadly and accurate blows.

Dex Entry

It is rumored that Charcadets are born when charcoal is imbued with life energy and becomes a Pokémon. The energy of Charcadet is nearly unmatched, so much so that they rarely ever get tired and spend almost every waking moment in combat, sparring or training. Depending on the values of Charcadet and the way it experiences its childhood, it will evolve to different forms.

Dex Entry

In normal cases, Charcadet will often evolve into Armarouge. This Pokémon keeps the vital spirit of its prior form and use its expert skills in combat to enact its own form of Justice. Armarouge will never turn down a fight against evildoers and will always interfere if someone needs help, even if its allies don't assist them. The armor it gains has a built in cannon that can shoot out flames at enemies.

Dex Entry

If a Charcadet loses faith in its own skills, is mistreated or is exposed to negative energy, it will instead evolve into Ceruledge. The Fiery Blades on its arms become fueled by its own resentment towards others or those who wronged it and it will enact its vengeance eternally until it is satisfied. Through its own ways, Ceruledge still has a code of justice, however it becomes more of a Vigilante.

Dex Entry

Noibat are often found only in the deepest chasms and caves, wherever the light is dimmest. Their ultrasonic waves can be used for disorientation, sonar, and finding ripe fruit. They're often a valuable companion for chefs due to this ability. As they release a sonic radar, they can tell how ripe a fruit is depending on the feedback they get from the fruit and how it reacts to the vibrations.

Dex Entry

Noiverns are well known as the "Wyvern of the Night", due to their nocturnal predatory nature. They're often cruel to their prey and can leave dents in the side of mountains with their sonic lances and ultrasonic waves. However Noivern can easily be tamed with those that provide it ripe and fresh fruit. They will often protect sources of food, even if they're not formally trained.

When Wattrel flies, the wind that pushes against its wings generates electricity that is stored within their bones and channeled throughout their body. Wattrel are almost exclusively found on cliffs near beaches, as its favorite prey are fish Pokemon. Wattrel will frequently dive into the ocean, electrocute its prey through its beak, then carry it back to its nest to enjoy.

Dex Entry

Kilowattrel are well known as one of the most durable avian Pokemon, able to fly for nearly 2 days without eating. In addition to storing energy in their bones as they fly through the airstreams, they also have a much larger throat sac which can store a larger reserve of electricity. Whenever threatened, Kilowattrel will often expend all the energy in its throat sac in a massive discharge to eliminate enemies.

Mismagius tends to feed on fear, absorbing any residual amounts within its ruby gem. If it has any fear residing in its gem it will recall on these memories and create visions based on the fear in order to terrify others. The curses derived from Mismagius range from terrifying visions to eternal dread to awful headaches to feelings of hopelessness. Its cries sound like incantations from a distance.

In a sad tale of irony, considering spirits are said to lose memories of their past lives, Shuppet never end up finding those they look for. The longer a Shuppet goes on the more its emotions start to influence its mental state. By the time it evolves into a Banette, the resentment and malice turns into a grudge. Banette spends its time searching for strangers to curse in place of its desired target.

Dex Entry

If a Drifloon decides to consume the Life Energy of those around it, its balloon will eventually expand into a hot air balloon until it evolves into Drifblim. While it is entirely capable of transporting people around, it often is carried by the wind, leading it to be a less reliable source of transportation. It can control its direction when flying however it expends stored Life Energy to do so.

As a Yamask ages, its obsession with reforming its former life advances. It uses its mask to create a sarcophagus in which it attempts to reform its body inside. While normal people see the same mask and coffin between all Cofagrigus, each one has their delusions severe enough where they see their former body being reformed. Cofagrigus use Life Energy to reform it and are desperate to do so.

Dex Entry

It is fairly common for tall tales to be spread around the fire of small villages, these myths are useful for anthropology. One of these myths is the origin of Phantump. Legends say when a misbehaving child dies in the woods, their soul is blocked from going to the other side by the tall shrouds of the trees. Being trapped, it instead becomes one with the earth, possessing a stump to wander the forest.

Dex Entry

The longer a Phantump wanders the Forest the more resentful it becomes at the wandering trainers who have a life that it can no longer have. The fact it doesn't have memories of its former life only enrages it further as it evolves into Trevenant. Most forests have a firm hierarchy of Trevenants who act as wardens, protecting the forest as if it was family. The eldest Trevenant is usually in charge.

Sometimes spirits return to the Mortal Plane in order to help others and be a benevolent force. These spirits take the form of a Pumpkaboo, their size often varying depending on how old the spirit was before it passed on. Their size also often corresponds to their wisdom, larger Pumpkaboo tend to be more calm and serene. During the night, they light up and follow travelers who are alone.

While Pumpkaboo normally travel around and help wayward souls and travelers, Gourgeist normally stay in villages that are kind to the occult natures. They bond with Hex Mages and Occultists, helping them with rituals and the maintainance of spirits in the area. If any bad spirits are set free, Gourgeist will capture it inside its body until it can be exorcized, making its body glow a bright orange hue.

Dex Entry

Most Sandygast are quick to die from their own arrogance, however those that manage to evolve into Palossand gain an ego and let vanity control them. The appearance of their castle means everything to them and if someone tries to vandalize them, they will hunt even children to the end of the beach. Palossand are known as the antithesis of summer and are hunted mercilessly to keep the good vibes.

Dex Entry

Rumors say that Sinistea are formed when Gastly enter a home and possess kitchenware. Once possessed it will live in solace, never interacting with the native family but being content with being around people to keep it company. If discovered it will attempt to flee desperately. Similar to the purple vapor of Gastly, Sinistea have a liquid form of the same poisonous gas, however it becomes its body.

Dex Entry

Sometimes Sinistea will get possessive of the home it inhabits rather than being a passive force. In order to show rebellion against the occupying family it will be mischevious, destroying some of the property in order to drive the family out. It is unknown whether this is genuine malice or a playful mischevious nature. It will often spit some of its poisonous liquid at enemies, smelling similar to tea.

Dex Entry

Cottonee are a highly valuable commodity for any Fashionista due to the rapid rate of generating cotton by converting sunlight and any plant matter they consume. Whenever a Cottonee is threatened or embarrassed it tends to launch cotton from its body to serve as a distraction. While not naturally formed in the wild, many cottonee are multicolored depending on the cotton needed by the seamstress.

Dex Entry

While Whimsicott don't require food outside of sunlight, they tend to visit settlements and cause havoc in residential homes. They sneak in through open windows, taking any shiny things they find and leave behind a trail of fluff at the scene of the crime. Whimsicott tend to be nomadic as they cannot control movement when it is windy, following the wind as it blows unless recalled. They don't seem to mind.

Dex Entry

Whenever Capsakid absorbs sunlight, the aroma that comes off of it becomes very spicy to even breathe in. The chemical conversion of energy is enough to even simulate burns with the same strength of fire. When the teeth of Capsakid shed, they are often used as spicy garnishes in top class restaurants, however they only shed once and take a year to do so, so it is a rare delicacy.

Dex Entry

The organ that creates spicy chemicals is now isolated into the red head when it evolves into Scovillain and thus it is the only head that can control the fire-like chemicals. The green head often controls its Grass side but gets very irritated when the spicy chemicals are released, thus shifting its mood vastly. Scovillain can create a milder form of chemicals that can strengthen allies if they can handle it.

Dex Entry

Whenever a soul wanders throughout the desert, they have a chance to get caught in the wind and tangled up with dry grass, becoming a Bramblin. Bramblin often have little control of where they move or control of their body itself so its movements are heavily dependant on the wind direction. If an enemy gets tangled in their branches, their life force will be slowly siphoned into itself.

Dex Entry

When Bramblin evolves, its body gains thorns and becomes much more cage like. When it runs into something its thorns will often get snagged into their body, preventing it from escaping as it encompasses them in a stranglehold. These thorns will remain latched onto their prey and siphon energy until there is none left or they faint. Once no energy is left, their thorns will release and it will move on.

Dex Entry

Baltoys were one of the few Pokémon originally made by human hands. It is said to have their origins in Ortheim where an old, long gone civilization tried to infuse inanimate objects with life. They bound soul fragments together, resulting in these clay puppets. Originally, they resembled a ruler after whose image they were made but after they were set free they lost that similarity, looking like they do today.

Dex Entry

While Baltoys were made more as observers and scouts, Claydols were made to be guardians of tombs and palaces - they often search places to guard even in the wild. There are rumors that they're able to either live very long or even be immortal; if not being destroyed by violence. But if there are Claydols that exist since their creation, they keep their secrets to themselves.

Dex Entry

The deep snow and icy tundras are no match for this Avalugg's steel jaw, using it to cut through even the toughest of ice and even rock itself. It is said that this Avalugg was created as a result of over predation within the tundra, leading for it to adapt to traversal between the tundra and wastelands. When sleeping it often burrows into mountains, making small caves in the process.

Dex Entry

Cetitan often wanders the snowy areas of its birth, warding off potential predators with its thick layer of muscles and fat, easily swatting aside even the roughest of dragons. Ice energy is built up within its lower jaw but can only be released through the conduits of its horns, releasing devastating icy beams. Its horns can reach cryogenic temperatures and can instantly freeze blood if they pierce you.

Dex Entry

Ursaluna is a fairly rare Pokémon, only being found in marshlands that are directly connected to forests that have native Teddiursa. Due to the playful nature of the Teddiursa it will end up playing near swamps and if desperate enough will scavenge for plantlife nearby. The exposure to such environment allows for it to evolve into Ursaluna who has a burlier body that can dig in these marshy terrains.

Dex Entry

The tail of a Girafarig has a small brain of its own, oftentimes with a separate personality that tends to be more violent. This side of Girafarig tends to be focused solely on primal instincts and doesn't sleep, so it protects Girafarig while it sleeps in exchange for food, as it can't control motor functions of the legs. Try not to anger a Girafarig as the tail has little patience and a quick temper.

Dex Entry

If Girafarig evolves, the tail merges with the main body and unites the two minds into a singular unit. The hardened scales of its tail now encase its body like a suit of armor, allowing it to become much more durable in battle. Farigiraf will often whip its head around, using the hardened portion of its skin to deal blunt force trauma to its enemies, often chasing them down until they are weakened.

Dex Entry

Dunsparce is a very average snake-like Pokémon that tends to avoid conflict. Using its drill shaped tail it can burrow into the ground and hide from predators for hours upon end. Wherever a Dunsparce live, many odd shaped, narrow tunnels are bound to be found as it can move backwards and propel itself with its tail. It has wings for some reason but they're not strong enough to lift its body that much.

Dex Entry

Researchers are unaware if Dudunsparce is an actual Pokemon or a different form of Dunsparce. Most suggest that the more segments a Dunsparce has, the stronger it becomes. However others disagree and state that when a Dunsparce has 2 or 3 segments, it is considered an evolved form. The hotness and lack of consensus of this debate only show how average this Pokemon is.

Dex Entry

Wyrdeer are only found within colder regions and said to be an adaptation of Stantler, forcing it to evolve when the circumstances demand it. Normally this would be classified as a Regional Variant, it is classified more as a Pokémon similar to Sawsbuck that adapt based on environmental factors. Unlike Stantler it seems their psionic potential is active and able to predict natural disasters similar to Absol.

Dex Entry

Glameow tend to be a niche favorite for most feline enjoyers due to their fickleness but high affection. Whenever they're displeased they tend to be cold to their Trainers but can forgive them if given enough attention. The movements of their tail tend to cause hypnosis which they use on strangers when begging for food in cities. Everstone pendants were invented because of Glameow.

Dex Entry

If a Purugly is seen there are a few explanations. 1. It was wild and needed to fend for itself to survive. 2. Its owner is indiscriminate on the beauty of this Pokémon. 3. The Trainer is harvesting its shedded fur which is said to be as soft as velvet. Wild Purugly tend to be scornful towards others, especially when seeing other Glameow and younger Pokémon that taunt it for its lack of attention.

Dex Entry

Despite its adorable appearance, the temper of a Stufful is comparable even to a Mankey. A touch from anyone other than someone it considers a friend will unleash a raging frenzy of flailing about. That being said, many Researchers were harmed to gain the knowledge that, yes, its fur is extremely, extremely fluffy. Known as a cruel prank from Arceus how he put such silky fur on a menace like Stufful.

Dex Entry

The only thing that brings joy to the life of a Lechonk is finding food. It has an amazing sense of smell but refuses to use it for anything else other than foraging, even if it highly respects their trainer. The older a Lechonk gets, the more picky it becomes, refusing to eat foods it once did until it finds food that its never had before or is extremely high quality. Some even starve this way from stubbornness.

3	Unique: Earthquake, Kinetic Strike, Skull Bash, Superpower Generic: Double-Edge, Hyper Beam, Giga Impact, Mega Kick

Dex Entry

The female species of Oinkologne is extremely picky and arrogant, desiring only perfection with every aspect of its life. Similar to when it was a Lechonk, it has very specific dietary preferences and will instead attack anyone who offers it less. A very sweet smelling aroma is expelled from its tail that makes its presence more tolerable to others to give it what it wants.

Dex Entry

Male Oinkologne forgo their picky appetite and instead focus on their own beauty and complexion. If anything damages its pristinely glossy skin, it will enact unnecessary levels of violence towards them. While it can excrete aroma from its own tail, it often will bond with a female Oinkologne or another aroma-based Pokémon and guard them as if they were worth more than gold.

Dex Entry

Tandemaus are never alone. If one is found alone without any other Tandemaus nearby, it will scream in excruciating pain. Researchers suggest that the emotional connections it has with its family cause it physical pain if severed by any means. The teamwork of Tandemaus is akin to soulbonds, where they share everything with each other and work as a unit to succeed in life and survival.

Dex Entry

There is no difference between Tandemaus and Maushold from the basis of species. However if at least 4 Tandemaus group together, they're clasified as a separate Pokemon with greater strength in a family unit. Tandemaus is one of the fastest breeders, with eggs that hatch within 2 hours if the conditions are ideal. In the wild, Maushold can consist of nearly 80 Tandemaus, since to them, Family is Everything.

Dex Entry

Galarian Weezing are practically mandatory for any modern day factory that is regulated efficiently. Toxic waste and poisonous gasses can be consumed by Galarian Weezing and converted into clean white smoke clouds. Much like normal Weezings it can also reverse the process, utilizing its toxin storage within battle to expunge poison at their enemies.

Dex Entry

Wild Shroodle abhor fighting so they often mark their territory and nests with a poisonous liquid that has the same liquidity as paint. Most wild Pokémon are aware if they find these markings that they should stay away and avoid the native Shroodle habitat. If a Shroodle feels threatened it will sink its teeth into its enemy, injecting acid into them and causing temporary paralysis, immobilizing them.

Dex Entry

Grafaiai keep the non-confrontational disposition of its previous form but instead gains a territorial ego based on the fear it derives. It will often claim entire sections of forests to itself, painting markings on trees with a unique pattern that show ownership, even getting in gang disputes with other Grafaiai. The color of its poison is based on its diet as colorful toxins seep from its saliva and fingers.

Dex Entry

Using the minerals from the rock or fuel in its body it creates toxic fumes from its cylinders which can be overheated to even form flames! Similar to Rotom, many Trainers decide to tame a Revavroom and combine it with their vehicles to enhance its body and shape their vehicles into weapons. As of late, many Motorcycle gangs employ the usage of Revavroom to enhance their horsepower output.

Dex Entry

Many trainers have participated in a study to determine which variant of Mr. Mime was more annoying, with results resoundingly agreeing that it was the Galarian variant. Not only do they create barriers and invisible screens to prank trainers walking by, but they can also create patches of ice on the ground for people to slip on. They can kick ice up to create even more barriers, except colder.

Dex Entry

Mr. Rime are often found on street corners simply tap dancing and creating ice sculptures to pass the time. Without training, they lose the desire to battle and instead engage in the smaller enjoyments of life. They also gain an icicle cane which they use to perform more tricks and keep their balance whenever they slip on their own ice stages. They lose some mobility as they evolve so yes it's possible.

Dex Entry

A key indicator in knowing you're near a woobat's habitat is if you find a mucus covered heart shape on the walls of a cave. Woobat uses its nose to subconsciously stick to a high wall in the cave when it would sleep. While not fully developed, Woobat can emit ultrasonic waves that give it a general sense of its environment, however they still tend to wander aimlessly in caves.

Dex Entry

Now developing eyes, Swoobat tend to not use sound waves for navigation but instead of mating, combat and communication. Swoobat are often captured and used within therapy, considering some sound waves have a soothing effect on people's moods. Some cultures have twisting designs for their wedding rings due to the tails of Swoobat, who mate for life once they find a partner.

Dex Entry

Despite its frilly appearance, Flittle has a harsh personality. As it flies around its habitat it will mark certain berry plants that it prefers and if other Pokémon steal from it, it'll hold a grudge on them. Next time it finds someone it has a grudge on it will chase them down and exact their revenge. These methods of revenge are often cruel and unusual, despite being limited to its small size.

Dex Entry

When Flittle evolves into Espathra, it will systematically go through its list of grudges and exact each of them before doing anything else. Using its immense psychic powers it can sprint at vast speeds, reaching up to 120 mph if it's angry enough. Its Psychic powers can also be used to flash bright lights at its enemies, often immobilizing or blinding their enemies from the intensity.

Dex Entry

Glimmet are only found within very deep caverns where shards grow, which is its primary food source. The color of its petals is dependant on the shards it consumes. The petals themselves are not actual flowers but instead crystalized poison which is secreted and hardened from its bulbous body. From this body it also can scatter poisonous pollen that deters other Terravores from being near it.

Dex Entry

The visual appearance of Glimmora is highly determined by its diet and ratio of shard colors it consumed before evolving, leading to many unique floral patterns for collecotrs. Though usually coiled on the walls of caverns, whenever Glimmora feels threatened it will open up its petals and shoot out its petals to impale and poison anyone nearby. These petals usually take a week to regrow.

Dex Entry

Slowpoke tend to only evolve when coming in contact with an Aethian Shellder. The shellers bite their tails due being mistaken for the tail the Aethian Variant. As a Slowbro ages however, the Shellder is slowly starved due to lack of poison to consume, then slowly petrifies. However it never releases its bite on the Slowbro. Researchers suggest Slowbro have a dulled sense of pain.

Dex Entry

While it is rare for an Aethian Shellder to release its grip from a Slowbro, some do instead of dying from lack of nutrients. They tend to leave behind a carcass of stone when they do so. Some Slowpoke happen across these carcasses, known as King's Rocks, and adorn it as a crown of regality. Once evolving to a Slowking they tend to gain intelligence from the pearl left behind.

Dex Entry

When Staryu evolves, the shape of its shell expands and its core becomes more polished and refined, allowing it to grow another set of appendages which it can use to speed through the ocean like a propeller. The core is fairly expensive as a fashion accessory, however no researcher has figured out how to utilize its core for any psionic based magitech, almost as if it has a mind of its own.

Dex Entry

Basculin are known as the bullies of the sea. 99% of the time you find a Basculin it will be picking a fight with either a weaker Pokémon or someone stronger than it to prove a point. These fights are often only to display dominance and have little to do with any personal grudges. They are very commonly hated by the fishing community due to their ability to break fishing lines with their sharp teeth.

Dex Entry

Due to the aggressive and competitive nature of Basculin, many are killed in the process of establishing a social hierarchy in an area of water. Every now and then a Basculegion will form as the spirit of the slain Basculin coalesce into one form. Basculegion are the pack leaders and alpha Pokémon, often leading other Basculin to fight off natural predators such as Gyarados or Huntail.

Dex Entry

Before modern day vehicles were invented or even Rapidash were domesticated, Cyclizar were the primary method of transportation in the early ages. They have evolved over time and developed a mutualism nature with its allies, where it allows them to ride its back in exchange for the rider's body heat. When it is heated this way it lifts the Cyclizar's mood and becomes much more obedient.

Dex Entry

This small fish pokemon is deceptively a dragon type, and one of the more intelligent ones. Tatsugiri is known as the false predator, as it clings to large water Pokemon and commands them to hunt for it while their bulky body protects it from harm. Even if tatsugiri is decently strong, it prefers saving its own energy while controlling its partner to gain even more food than it would on its own.

Dex Entry

The apron on the chest of Bombirdier is made of feathers that were shed from itself or its parents. This apron is sturdy enough to carry the weight of nearly anything. Bombirdier often collects rocks, food and other debris that interest it into its apron and either carries them back to its nest or uses them in combat to throw at their enemies. It'll often drop rocks on its enemies just to piss them off.

Dex Entry

Flamigo are masters at a technique known as "Synchronizing". When in a flock with other Pokémon, it will synchronize its movements to exactly match its allies and attack as one. Some find this form of mimicry to be a form of attention seeking, as it usually enjoys being the center of attention. Flamigo tend to have large egos and if given praise, it will be easier to interact with.

Dex Entry

The personality of Squawkabilly is heavily dependant on the color of its Plumage, being variants of green, yellow, blue or white. Green Variants are often noisy city dwellers. Yellow Variants are vicious, hotheaded and fierce. Blue Variants enjoy socializing and forming gangs with other avian Pokémon. White Variants are often social city dwellers, getting along the most with humans and merchants.

Dex Entry

Klawf will frequently hang to the sides and undersides of cliffs and mountains, waiting for prey to pass by before lunging and tearing into them. Despite the blood rushing to their heads, they seem to be unaware to the health issues that may arise from being upside-down too long. As a result, if a Klawf doesn't find a victim within a few hours, they'll be found upside-down and unconscious.

Dex Entry

Orthworm are normally passive creatures that live in deserts, consuming rocks for their iron deposits to sustain itself. If slighted, Orthworm will shape the tendrils of its body into fists, expanding them from the holes in its armor to pummel its opponents in combat. The body of Orthworm itself is blue and gooey in consistency and as they grow, they form a steel carapace with the iron it consumes.

Dex Entry

Finizen are highly empathetic and intelligent Pokémon, some even saying it carries the empathy from Manaphy herself and spreads it across the sea. The ultrasonic waves it creates can also sense the emotion of other creatures it comes across. Though Finizen isn't strong on its own, when it senses danger it can temporarily evolve into an alternate hero form in order to protect its friends.

Dex Entry

While Finizen is known as the heart of Manpahy, Palafin is known as the might of Manaphy. Palafin only exists for around an hour when a Finizen senses someone in danger, allowing it to transform into a stronger form. Palafin swiftly deals with those that threaten sealife, wielding strength that can surpass or match even the mightiest of dragons, and it can swim at speeds higher than 50 knots to save others.

Dex Entry

Due to the massive size of Dondozo, only one can exist in an area at a time or else the other starves and it is also a major glutton. Tatsugiri are often found wherever a Dondozo is considering their mutualist relationship. Dondozo is the biggest musclehead a Tatsugiri can use to gain prey, and without the help of a Tatsugiri, Dondozo can't obtain enough prey to sustain its appetite.

Dex Entry

The excess bodyfat on Veluza tend to slow the bloodflow to its vital organs so it tends to shed and discard unnecessary flesh. Whenever it does so its reflexes get sharper, its fins become swifter and its mind becomes more honed, resulting in a large power increase which can easily be regenerated. The skin shed off Veluza is a common staple in seafood restaurants, though not a delicacy.

Dex Entry

Unlike normal Pokemon, Eevee are harder to evolve with pure experience. Eevee require a kinship to a pack of wild Pokemon it deems as family, or a connection to a Trainer, in order to evolve. Once it establishes a pack to bond with it will evolve based on the conditions of that pack. For Example, a Maelstrom Trainer would be able to evolve Vaporeon. Some Evolutions may be forced w/Elemental Stones.

Dex Entry

Researchers suggest when a town or location has an overall negative aura or attitude to life, it can attract Dark Pokemon or create darker regional variants, much like what created Alolan Rattata. Unlike its normal variant, Alolan Rattata gains a darker coat of fur, helping it blend into the shadows and stalk its prey at night. They often are very stealthy, stealing from merchants' stock overnight.

Dex Entry

Unlike normal Raticate, Alolan Raticate are much less violent and more gluttonous than anything. When a Rattata becomes an elder and evolves, they often take command of the pack and issue orders to the other Rattata to steal food for it. Raticate however is very picky with the food it eats, only consuming the finest of stolen delicacies while it allows the Rattata to take the rest of the spoils.

Dex Entry

This variety of Meowth are fairly spoiled and ambitious in compared to their normal counterparts. Criminals often capture Meowth as a status symbol, upgrading the golden coin on their head to serve as a symbol of wealth of the Trainer. The coin is often enchanted and adorned with many different jewels and colors, a red dyed coin often signifying their trainer will resort to violent means if necessary.

Dex Entry

Alolan Diglett are known to have small hair follicles that sprout from its head. These are often used as sensors that detect iron content within the ground. This helps it find roots of plants which it uses for nutrients that are highly rich in nutrients for it. While it prefers to eat minerals, it will often eat plants and vegetables for the sake of enjoyment, or for the sake of troubling local farmers.

Dex Entry

Once an Alolan Diglett has eaten enough minerals and Iron, its hair follicles will grow out to an entire wig. It becomes very prideful of this wig, often seeking out other digletts to form a trio of diglett, forming dugtrio. They serve as a clique more or less, boasting at other Pokémon and mocking their inferior looks. Its hair never moves unless they're in a magnetic location, making it go frizzy.

Dex Entry

Alolan Vulpix are fairly beloved due to its cute qualities, however are only found in nearly subzero regions. Due to its popular nature, it is common for Pokemon Hunters to take them from their habitats and breed them in captivity. As such, when a Vulpix is not in cold temperature, they become very frail and weak, losing all luster and sheen on their normally luxuriously silky fur.

Dex Entry

Alolan Ninetales are rarely, if ever found alone. Ninetales are always found in a pack with smaller Ice Pokemon, mostly Vulpix, protecting them as a Matriachal figure. If Ninetales senses any danger towards its kits, it will not hesitate to unleash an intense blizzard or curse the threat. If a Ninetales is found alone, it is almost always volatile emotionally and poses an extreme threat to wanderers.

Dex Entry

Alolan Sandshrew are only found deep within caverns and mountainous regions. Due to natural adaptations, their hides and shells are made of compacted ice that is as hard as steel. Whenever it spots a predator it tends to curl up into a ball and hide among snow piles and rocks covered in ice, blending in naturally into the environment.

Dex Entry

Once an Alolan Sandshrew has gained enough confidence and evolved, it tends to exit the deeper caverns and explore the surrounding tundras. It uses its sharp claws to dig through the hardened frost ground and dig when nothing else can. It has steel spikes on its back sheathed in ice that look very similar to crystals, helping it blend into the background while sleeping in caves.

Dex Entry

The amount of chemicals needed to sustain an Alolan Muk can nearly fill a house. It's rainbow, iridescent color is a result of the multitude of strange chemical combinations it has eaten while it was a Grimer. Instead of chemical reactions, Aethian Muks crystallize and metalicize chemicals into rocky shards which it uses as spikes and teeth. If any break, harsh toxins will leak out immediately.

Alolan Golem have a launcher ontop of their heads that serves as a focal point for charging its electric attacks. While it prefers close range combat, it can charge up a boulder with electricity and launch it as a long range bomb. Golem's potential for energy storage is also amplified, allowing it to store massive amounts of electricity that can be released within a minute to cause a massive explosion.

Dex Entry

The toughest of Galarian Linoone will evolve into Obstagoon, serving as leaders of the pack that are charged with training the runts of the litter. Obstagoon never chases prey unlike its previous forms, however if prey runs into it, it will attempt to prevent them from escaping. After it traps prey, it yells very loudly, alerting nearby pack members to come to its location.

Dex Entry

Compared to normal Farfetch'd, Galarian Farfetch'd prefer ground combat. It abandons the air entirely and the use of its wings as it prefers to use its Leak for combat. Pokemon Researchers state that Farfetch'd aren't born with Leaks, though the Aethian variety quickly search for a Leak upon the first week of birth. They will run away if they don't have one and conflict arises.

Dex Entry

Galarian Farfetch'd are fairly well known for their brutal tactics with Leak combat. Sirfetch'd however are much more honorable, taking in a regal attitude. They will rarely ever attack unprovoked and never strike down on a disarmed enemy. It's signature attack Meteor Assault swings its leak in a whirlwind with a brutal force that leaves it exhausted.

Dex Entry

Galarian Stunfisk can often be found in areas of high Iron content and little conductivity such as underground or in temples. They're often brought in by Trainers that wish to protect an area to ensnare any wandering Pokemon or Treasure Hunters that may disturb an area. To defend an area, this Stunfisk hides under mud and snaps at the first target, rarely ever letting go without causing damage.

Dex Entry

While it is commonly suggested that energy expended releases heat, it is the opposite for Galarian Darumaka. As they're in a cold environment they gain more energy, and in return expend cold air. They social creatures so they're often found in small Villages playing with children outside in the playgrounds, or playing pranks on other more serious headed warriors.

Dex Entry

Galarian Darmanitan are normally very reserved in their nature, compared to Darumaka's energy levels at least. They're often given to senior citizens within Villages to serve as aids and protectors, along with being companions as well. If Darmanitan finds anything of value while out in the wilds it will store it in the snowball on top of its head to keep it hidden from others.

Dex Entry

Studies show that the heat sac within normal species of Darmanitan are inactive and cold most of the time. However whenever Darmanitan feels threatened or angered, it will turn into its Zen Form and erupt into flames. All stored energy will be converted into heat and power its heat sac. This process usually provides them with enough heat to last for 3 hours until they burn out from exhaustion.

A rather lazy Pokémon. Its diet mainly consists of plants that grow by the shores of beaches of ponds. After it eats it tends to take long naps by those areas, dipping its tail in the water. Unfortunately for this variant they stopped by polluted areas, having their tails poisoned in the process. Researchers suggest that Slowpoke is either unaware it's poisoned or it just doesn't care.

Overqwil are only found within deep sea ravines with their qwills jabbed into stone walls. It waits until prey come near it, expands its spikes or shoots qwills at it to poison and kill it, only then will it resume resting and waiting on the stone walls. Even large sea Pokemon such as Kingdra and Gyarados steer clear of this monster as anyone who draws its spite will be ruthlessly attacked without mercy.

Dex Entry

Unlike other phototrophs, Electrode cannot control the process of conversion from sunlight to energy. As such whenever it would become overcharged with electricity it becomes angry until it is able to discharge any residual electricity. Whenever this would occur it tends to hide in shaded areas to avoid sunlight, or roll into a barren area only to explode without anyone nearby being hurt.

Dex Entry

Compared to its normal variant, Hisuian Sneasel are lone hunters. To gain an edge in battle though this variant lives near marsh waters and dips its claws into the toxic waters, giving it a poisonous edge in battle. In order to prove themselves worthy to go without a pack, these Sneasel often ambush more inexperienced prey, taking any valuables they have with a threat to poison them otherwise.

Dex Entry

As Sneasel evolves, its body adapts to the poison and their claws restructure around it so it doesn't infect the rest of its body. As a result a high concentration of venom is located within its claws, leading to insanely venomous strikes even if its defeated. Sneaslars of this variant have proven their own competence without a pack and tend to be egotistical lone hunters that are disciplined and deadly.

Dex Entry

When Clodsire is attacked, it will retaliate by sticking thick spines out of its body, though it often damages the internals of its body afterwards. Clodsire is often known as a bottom feeder at the bottom of lakes in marshes and cares after smaller Pokémon that live nearby. Paldean Wooper aren't great at swimming so they'll often carry them across from shore to shore to assist them.

Dex Entry

Though its legs may be scrawny, they are incredibly sturdy and are able to run at speeds of 30 mph. Toedscool are said to be a divergent species from Tentacool that lived in a swamp and was pushed onto land, now deriving nutrients from the soil. As time elapsed, they evolved their tentacles into stronger appendages that could serve as both legs and roots.

Dex Entry

The flesh of a Toedscruel's head is extremely delicious and highly sought after by chefs, however the natural rage of wild Toedscruel tend to make this task hard to accomplish. They often live deep within muggy forests in colonies and despise the presence of any other Pokemon or Trainer. When attacking its prey, it will wrap around them and jab its mouth into them, siphoning their nutrients until dry.

Dex Entry

It is said that Wiglett are a divergent species based on Diglett, unlike other regional Pokemon. These Diglett formed their habitats near the beach and ocean and developed bodies to easier navigate the looser sands compared to the ground. Its tremorsense also became more refined to sense the movement in nearby bodies of water, gaining the ability to sense predators that may drag it into the waters.

Dex Entry

When Wiglett make a colony, they often evolve together to become a Wugtrio. Instead of roaming around the beach, they often form small dens underneath the sands and hide within, only peaking outside through rocks nearby to look for prey. Whenever it finds small Pokemon they wish to prey upon, they will drag them into the cracks of their rock and drag them into their den under the sands.

Dex Entry

Slither Wing is said to be an ancient version of Volcarona that was a more advanced version of Larvesta, never becoming airborne and instead becoming larger. It moves similarly to other Arachnid Pokemon and is vicious in its combat tactics. Fire can only be generated by a Slither Wing if it flaps its wings fast enough to generate heat, often leading to superheated air surrounding it when its fired up.

Dex Entry

Iron Jugulis is said to be a futuristic form of Hydreigon. When exposed to Quantum energy for some reason it loses its draconic powers and gains a much slimmer body. The Quantum energy it's exposed to results in a mutation where its flame sac starts to generate quantum energy of its own. It uses this energy to shift into various types of attacks or boost its speed when flying.

Dex Entry

Roaring Moon is said to be an Ancient form of Salamence. Supposedly, Salamences of the past were more lizard-like in appearance and lacked many of the scales it had. However in exchange they had massive wings similar to Mega Salamence that absorb energy from the moon. This lunar energy allowed it to boost its powers in combat and restore its injuries when damaged in battle.

3	Unique: Gravity, Iron Coating, Lightning Lance, Magnetic Storm, Magnetic Surge, Magnet Rise, Plasma Bolt, Plasma Storm, Thunderstorm, Thunder, Thunder Cage Generic: Double-Edge, Hyper Beam, Giga Impact, Mega Kick

Dex Entry

Sandy Shocks is said to be an Ancient form of Magnetron. In the past it is said that the earliest form of magnetism was much more powerful and harder to control, even for magnetron. As a result, the iron ore within the ground and sand around them would be attracted to the magnets on Magnetron, forming spiky bushes of iron filings. Magnetron doesn't seem to mind this and can manipulate it

Dex Entry

Iron Valiant is said to be a futuristic form of either Gallade or Gardevoir. When exposed to Quantum energy it seems as though this Pokémon shifts into a version created in the distant future where humans became cyborgs and augmented Pokémon with non-organic bodies. It is said that Iron Valiant can perceive and communicate with Aura far better than its previous forms using its augmentations.

Dex Entry

Scream Tail is said to be an Ancient form of Jigglypuff. Though it is unsure what is different than a normal Jigglypuff, the attitude of Scream Tail seems to be much more violent, some say to compete with the predators of that age and not die out. Oddly enough, Scream Tail can channel its voice to be released through the end of its hair, resulting in a condensed scream compared to its mouth.

Dex Entry

Brute Bonnet is said to be an Ancient form of Amoonguss. It is said during ancient times that when fossil Pokemon roamed the land, Brute Bonnets aggressively held onto their territory within forests. They would hide in bushes using the moss that hangs from their cap to hide into their surroundings and if prey passed by, they would launch a deadly and reckless assault on them.

Dex Entry

Great Tusk is said to be an Ancient form of Donphan. The exposure of ancient energy has lead to the temper of Donphan becoming much more intolerable and their tusks becoming much more sturdier, being able to push back even dragons during combat. When Great Tusk rolls into a ball, the spikes allow it to tread up any surface and impale their enemies by rolling over and impaling them.

Dex Entry

Iron Treads is said to be a futuristic form of Donphan. While there are no solid answers, some suggest that Iron Treads was a form of security in the future. When they would detect an enemy that is trespassing, they would curl up and roll at nearly 80 mph to confront them, with precision that is extremely daunting. When it moves it stores the energy created from friction inside of it to use later in combat.

Dex Entry

Iron Bundle is said to be a futuristic form of Delibird. Though we can only speculate, some say that Delibird have gone extinct in the future due to the predators in the snowy mountain peaks, or due to their selfless nature. Some say these robotic visages of Delibird are solely meant as a replacement to continue holiday spirit or possibly to continue breeding a species that was slowly becoming extinct.

Guzzlord are considered the menaces of Arenyo. The absolute titan of a Pokemon is said to be the main tank force of the ruling party. Only one is needed to annihilate a settlement, eating through whatever lays in its path while its durability is near unbreakable. At the back of its mouth lays a portal. No one knows where it leads but for a creature with no stomach, its perceived hunger is endless.

Though innocent, Poipole are born from the incubation eggs of the terrifying Naganadel. During this incubation period, Naganadel tend to lay their pods onto recently deceased corpses, whose energy is siphoned into the egg for nutrients. Depending on what they consumed, their toxins will evolve and adapt accordingly, leading to their neverending strain of new viruses and bio-weapon nature.

Naganadel are said to be the source of all disease across the known universe. Only native to the planet of Vortos, Naganadel's sole purpose is to destroy and breed. This goal is achieved by stabbing its victims and injecting its own concoction of venom into them, and once they die, they create incubation eggs for Poipole to be born, then move on. It is said some may have escaped Vortos and spread.

If you could capture a building, would you? Stakataka are known as sentient bricks that were seemingly created in the planet of Tshroba and serve as the architectural foundation of many important buildings requiring dense security. Each segment has eyes that share a hivemind and can serve as security, or alert those who may want to know a building is under assault. If separated, they are useless.

Dex Entry

Not much is currently known about Celesteela except it being from the planet Terrasutra and under the control of the Zaiden Empire. It is said that its bamboo arm pillars are able to dig into the ground and siphon Arcana from the leylines. With this Time Arcana, there are rumors of them being able to create Time Portals, giving them access to time travel. Though it is unknown how Zaiden accomplishes this.
